OKIZU

Supporting Families with Childhood Cancer

Okizu began with the belief that a residential camp can be an ideal setting for children struggling with cancer to explore and enjoy a normal life experience, while interacting with others who truly understand their illness.

Okizu has served more than 51,000 Northern California family members affected by childhood cancer over the past 42 years.

The mission of Okizu is to help all members of families affected by childhood cancer to heal through peer support, respite, mentoring, and recreational programs.

Okizu is more than a summer camp. They work with all their partners, from volunteers to national medical institutions, to reach and support those they serve, all year-round, and whenever they are needed.

- Okizu is the most comprehensive and oldest camp of its kind in the country.
- No one is ever turned away and our programs are always offered free of charge.
- Medical staff and counselors volunteer more than 100,000 hours of their time to make programs happen each year, making it a great investment.
