Welcoming Home

When individuals and families transition out of homelessness, finally securing a roof over their heads is a major victory. But for many, that new apartment or home is completely empty with no beds to sleep on, no dishes to eat from, and no chairs or tables to gather around. That is where Welcoming Home steps in. This local nonprofit helps people move from surviving to truly living by fully furnishing and equipping their homes at no cost to the residents or their referring social service agencies.

Welcoming Home bridges a critical gap that few government programs address by providing the essentials that turn housing into a home. Each project is a community effort, relying on donations of gently used furniture, household goods, and financial support.

With help from volunteers, every space is thoughtfully furnished and decorated in a single day, creating a warm, welcoming environment where families can rest, share meals, and start rebuilding their lives.

The people Welcoming Home serves have often faced unimaginable challenges, escaping abusive relationships, unsafe living conditions, or conflict in their home countries. Now, with a place of their own and a renewed sense of dignity, they can begin the next chapter of their lives. Every couch, plate, and lamp represents not just comfort but community support. By repurposing donated furniture, Welcoming Home also helps keep valuable items out of landfills, making a difference for both people and the planet.
