CORINNA KAUFMAN FINE ART GREETING CARDS

Corinna Kaufman's art begins in the ocean. She personally gathers each piece of seaweed, selecting specimens for their color, shape, and natural character, then preserves them exactly as they are so nature's own palette can shine. The rich reds, soft greens, and deep browns in her work are entirely natural, revealing a quiet beauty often overlooked beneath the waves.

Over the years, Corinna has refined techniques to preserve organic materials while maintaining their original forms and colors. She incorporates seaweed, tiny mussels, and shimmering silica into compositions that highlight delicate details and invite close attention. Working from her home studio without glues or artificial finishes, she relies on methods shaped by patience and experience.

Through her work, Corinna captures the ocean's fleeting moments and gives them lasting form, allowing its quiet artistry to endure long after the tide has receded. Visit United Markets to see Corinna Kaufman's seaweed greeting cards up close and take home a piece of the ocean!

Her connection to the sea started in childhood on Martha's Vineyard, where she spearfished with her parents and developed a deep respect for marine life. At eleven, a simple seaweed bookmark sparked her imagination and set her on a lifelong path of experimentation and discovery.
