SEE'S CANDY FUNDRAISER

Okizu (pronounced oak-eye-zoo) comes from the Sioux language and means unity, to come together, to heal from hurt, and to make whole. Its mission is to support families affected by childhood cancer through peer support, respite, mentoring, and recreational programs.

Since 1982, Okizu has offered Oncology, Siblings, Family, Bereavement, and Teens-N-Twenties programs in partnership with pediatric oncology treatment centers across Northern California. These programs are grounded in the healing power of shared experience and community-based residential camp settings.

Children undergoing cancer treatment often miss out on a typical childhood. Illness and treatment can limit everyday experiences, yet these children still need opportunities to grow, explore, and build independence. Okizu believes a residential camp environment offers a meaningful way for children to experience joy and connection with peers who truly understand their journey.

The impact of childhood cancer extends to the entire family, including parents and siblings. Okizu programs provide space for connection, understanding, and emotional support, helping families navigate their experience together while also finding moments of rest and renewal.

More than a summer camp, Okizu provides year-round support in collaboration with volunteers and medical partners to reach families whenever they are needed. Your donation helps ensure that families affected by childhood cancer can access healing, community, and hope through Okizu's programs.

LEARN MORE AT OKIZU.ORG

A childhood cancer diagnosis creates significant emotional and financial strain. To ensure access for all families, Okizu programs are offered free of charge.
